flooring material right for you. Relative durability, design considerations, and subfloor type are also important factors to consider

There are many product choices available for new floor installations, from traditional plank wood flooring with various dimensions to numerous pre-finished and "engineered" flooring products. While these products are available in a wide price range, budget is just one determinate in choosing a

REFINISH

To suit your particular needs we offer the four different finish types listed below. All our products provide a highly durable, low maintenance finish.

Swedish:

This has been the industry standard for durability in the Northwest for many years, and will add a warm "Old World" traditional appearance to your home.

Waterborne:

This is a far less toxic alternative to the Swedish, and ideal for families with allergies, pets and/or children. Its appearance will be lighter than the Swedish and typically have a lower sheen.

E-Floor:

This is an epoxy system created by our Seattle Floor Service Research and Development Department in collaboration with top leaders of the flooring industry. This is an extremely durable finish system ideal for heavy use and offers the strongest finish protection than anything in the world.

O.S. Hard Wax/Oil:

This is the most environmentally conscious finish available and the best penetrating oil the market has to offer. Ideal for low traffic areas, it can also be reapplied as wear spots develop by the homeowner.

CUSTOMIZE

We here at Seattle Floor Service believe that every job is unique- some by chance, others by choice. Stains, inlays, exotic woods, and craftsman restorations are just a few of the customization aspects that you may want to incorporate into your floor. We have the knowledge and expertise to add beauty and refinement to your home so Call Today and schedule your free estimate!
